HANDS ON ART

GREEN MAN inspired by Friedensteich Hundertwasser by Marianne Coble

History: Friedensreich Hundertwasser (1928 - 2000) is considered one of the most important artist and architect to emerge from Europe since WWII. In the early 1950s, he entered the field of architecture. He also worked in the field of applied art, creating flags, stamps, coins, and posters.

The common themes in his work utilized bright colors, organic forms, a reconciliation of humans with nature, and a strong individualism, rejecting straight lines and any standardization.

Project: Starting with a 9" X 12" white mixed media paper, you will first use a pencil to lightly divide the landscape paper into thirds, a background, middle ground and foreground. Then the facial features will be added step by step. Add houses, trees and more design interest lightly in pencil before going over some of these lines with black sharpie markers.

Using watercolors, you will start painting the face using light washes of color. Then you will proceed to the landscape areas before finishing with the detailed house, trees and other design elements.

Take Home: You will have a personally designed, Hundertwasser inspired picture to display at home or give as a gift.
